

Over the last few years the media has been increasingly controlled by fewer and fewer large corporations. This is of great concern to me . Most people get their news from television. But, when the airwaves are controlled by a few firms and in some instances they are the same firms that also own the magazines and newspapers. There is a grave danger in this consolidation because they can control the news we hear. Of course, we own the public airways . But the FCC must make certain that those who are given the gift of using those airwaves are responsible in the way they broadcast. What we all fear with this consolidation has happened over and over with the Sinclair Broadcast group. Whether they try to "package" their bias as a special or documentary, it should not be permitted. They are using my airspace to do this and I DON'T LIKE IT !. Sinclair should probably NOT control so many stations in the first place and even if they own ONE they should be responsible in their broadcasting. If they cannot or will not be responsible - the FCC should revoke their license. This is a disgraceful situation - if we want to protect our freedom - groups like Sinclair need to be denied ownership .
